Angry Fidel Leaves Hotel for Harlem

NEW YORK (AP)—Tempestuous Fidel Castro, settled in hotel quarters in Negro Harlem, planned today to attend the opening session of the United Nations General Assembly.

The Cuban premier stormed out of the Hotel Shelburne in midtown Manhattan Monday night, complaining of light security restrictions and the hotel's rates. He threatened for a time to camp out in Central Park or on the United Nations lawn.

Despite the ruffled feelings, Dr. Raul Roa, the Cuban foreign minister, said Castro would attend the session as scheduled.

Roa talked with newsmen as he breakfasted at a counter restaurant near the hotel on an orange drink, a hot dog and coffee. He said Castro would not address the opening session.

The foreign minister said Castro and the rest of the Cuban delegation are satisfied with their new quarters in the Hotel Theresa.

"We are happy here and they are very courteous," Roa said.

A police detail of almost 150 men, including members of the bomb squad, is on duty at the hotel.

The bomb squad men reportedly were examining all packages addressed to the Cubans.

City Board Adopts Usual 5 Mill Tax

The City Board of Directors at their regular meeting last night established the city ad valorem tax rate at five mills (.005), which has been the local tax for a great many years.

They also approved payment of $3,500 toward the city's part of the cost of construction on the new City-County Health Center. The completed health center will cost the city and county each about $13,000.

John Hawkins, Consulting Engineer, made a preliminary report on his study of the old sewer mains. The Board agreed to meet at 3:30 p. m., Thursday, September 22, for a full review of the detailed plans prepared by the engineering firm which reports on the existing conditions and recommends a program of replacement of old damaged sewer mains.

The Board received reports from the City Manager on the establishing of trailer park facilities for the pipe line crew now located in Hope and on recently completed paving projects in Southland Heights and Cherry Street.

Khrushchev Has Talk With Castro in Harlem Hotel

NEW YORK (AP)—Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev and Cuban Premier Fidel Castro conferred for 40 minutes today in the latter's hotel quarters.

Khrushchev arrived at Castro's hotel quarters at 12:14 p. m. EDT. Escorted by Castro, he stepped back into his limousine at 12:54 p. m. and sped off.

The pair clasped hands as they spoke briefly at the curb. The Cuban leader then went back into the hotel.

The Soviet leader's move came without warning.

He traveled in a motorcade to the Hotel Theresa in Harlem about four miles from the Soviet delegation residence on Park Avenue.

Because of the surprise move, police had to improvise a security motor detail to escort the premier.

Shortly before noon, the Soviet Premier, wearing a dark blue suit, white shirt and blue tie, strode from the Soviet delegation building.

Smiling, Khrushchev raised his hand in salute to waiting photographers.

Khrushchev met earlier in his heavily guarded Park Avenue residence with Cuban Foreign Minister Raul Roa.

It was the Soviet leader's first known contact with any foreign leader except those from European satellites since he arrived amidst boos and catcalls Monday morning.

The visit strengthened belief that Khrushchev would follow up his United Nations stay by making a visit to Cuba as honor guest of Premier Fidel Castro.

Soviet security agents helping guard Khrushchev's residence meanwhile turned aside all questions about whether their chief would attend the opening session of the United Nations General Assembly which opens this afternoon.

Howard began his hobby in 1940, and it took him 15 years to

Lumumba Can Get Post in Cabinet

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP) — Patrice Lumumba has a chance to stay in the government of the Congo—if he will consent to take a back seat.

Pro-Western President Joseph Kasavubu has offered Lumumba, whom he ousted as premier, a cabinet post, in an effort to bring peace to the country, it was announced Monday night. The leftist Lumumba has been Kasavubu's most determined enemy.

There was no immediate reply from Lumumba, whose office earlier had said a reconciliation had been reached between the two under which Lumumba would remain as premier.

Kasavubu said he had discussed a possible reconciliation with sources close to Lumumba but that he had refused to sign any agreement leaving Lumumba in the premier's office.

Kasavubu has appointed Joseph Ileo premier. Jean Bolikango, Ileo's information minister, said the new government named by Ileo had not taken over effective power because it hoped to reach agreement with Lumumba.

There is some doubt if Lumumba will take the cabinet post under Ileo.

Bolikango said however, "Lumumba is intelligent enough to know that the Congo cannot continue in the present chaos, and that some compromise must be found."

Bolikango conceded that army Col. Joseph Mobutu, the reigning strongman of the Congo, was not fully in control of the 3,000 or so soldiers stationed at Camp Leopold on the outskirts of Leopoldville.

A U.N. spokesman said units of Lumumba's troops which tried to invade Katanga province have agreed to a U.N.-supervised truce and are withdrawing.

Lumumba said he would not press for a vote on his resolution or on Soviet amendments which sought to reverse the Asian-African resolution supporting Lumumba's handling of the Congo operation.

Zorin made his move after appeal from Alex Quinson-Sneykov of Ghana. Just before the Soviet delegate acted, U.S. Ambassador James J. Wadsworth had announced that the United States would vote for the Asian-African resolution, if it remained unchanged.

Observers noted that the Soviet bloc joined in the 80-0 vote on a provision in the 17-nation resolution calling on all nations to refrain from giving war material or sending military personnel to the turbulent Congo.

Reds Rebuffed as UN Supports Its Secretary

By TOM HOGE

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Squashing Soviet opposition, the General Assembly gave overwhelming support early today to Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld's actions in the Congo.

Debating until after midnight to wind up the emergency session on the Congo before the regular assembly opens this afternoon, weary delegates voted 70-0 with 11 abstentions for a 17-nation Asian-African resolution backing up Hammarskjöld.

The nine-nation Soviet bloc, France and South Africa abstained on the resolution.

The Assembly's action was seen as a vindication of the secretary-general who has been under attack for Soviet attack for his Congo policies, and as a slap at Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev on the eve of his heretofore unimpeachable record.

The Soviets had accused Hammarskjöld of interfering in the internal affairs of the Congo and heaped strong criticism upon him when the U.N. command deprived Moscow-favored Patrice Lumumba, now ousted as premier, of the use of the radio and the airports. Lumumba had been using Soviet airplanes and trucks, supplied on U.N. credit, for troop movements against his political enemies.

Faced with solid opposition from the Asian-African bloc, the Soviet Union threw in the sponge and gave up her efforts to ram through a resolution which would have been a sharp indictment of Hammarskjöld's actions in the Congo.

Valerian Zorin, Soviet deputy foreign minister, told the Assembly he would not press for a vote on his resolution or on Soviet amendments which sought to reverse the Asian-African resolution supporting Hammarskjöld's handling of the Congo operation.

THE STORY: Ciccio Massimo is a bricklayer engaged in work for the Italian underground during the time when American troops were advancing on Rome in 1944. His immediate superior is an American officer, Paolo MacDougall.

CHAPTER II

Ciccio the bricklayer, was associated in conspiracy. At home his resistance went as far as to discourage his sons' enthusiasm when they reached 16 or 17 years of age by advice like: "Don't be fooled by uniforms; they're for rich clowns." Or: "One government is like another—hand it."

"Where do you go every Sunday afternoon?" asked Marco one evening in the winery. "You never come here."

"I have so many children to feed that I work on Sundays. Usually for the monks—they're always building and repairing."

"Work for the monks, indeed!" said Marco. "You probably have a girl friend in San Giovanni."

Renzo and Marco laughed until tears rolled down their cheeks. Ciccio's lies at home were even more involved. One day Rigoletta said, "If you work every Sunday, where is the money you earn?"

"I must tell you the truth, Rigoletta. It is too dangerous for you not to know. But you must never tell anyone. I am a secret member of the Fascist Party. Secret, because they want to know who are the Bolsheviks here in Vicolo del Piede and in the winery."

"Why do you endanger your family by being a spy and meddling in politics?"

Ciccio drew himself up, imitating the great men of justice and liberty. "It is my duty to my country, to mankind, and to the Duce."

Like all Italians, Ciccio blamed the disasters of life on the government, and 1928 was a year of hatred for the Fascist Regime. In January his wife died in childbirth and the baby, a boy survived her by less than a week.

His hopes that this boy Claudio, now 18 and earning well as an assistant to the keeper of the dog pound, might help him pay off the heavy debts were blasted early in April. The boy announced he had been "invited" to join the Fascist Militia, which no one dared refuse, and would leave for camp before the first of May. Even Ciccio, his hatred of the Regime greater than ever, did not have the courage to say no.

It was Renzo, one of Ciccio's chief creditors, who came to the rescue. His niece, Clementina, had inherited nearly 5,000 lire from her father in Waterbury, Conn. She was 26, a childless widow, and far from beautiful; few of her neighbors knew of the legacy. With the double interest of helping his old friend and safeguarding his loans, Renzo promoted her marriage to Ciccio. In early August they were married, thus nearly liquidating Ciccio's debts and at the same time providing a mother for his children, a cook, and a wife.

After the excitement, sorrow, and expenses of 1928, life leveled itself off for Ciccio. In 1929, Clementina gave birth to little Deodata. In 1930 she had a son, Livio, and in 1932 twin girls. As the years rolled by, a bricklayer's pay went up less rapidly than the cost of living, but the increased premium for big families nearly covered this for Ciccio. He paid off his debts; Clementina was a good manager. There were the Sunday meetings with the Signori, and once or twice a week an evening of wine with Marco and Renzo—life was not bad all in those calm years before the wars in Ethiopia and Spain.

With two pairs of long woolen drawers, two sweaters, and a long scarf around his neck, his mason's tools on the rack behind the saddle, Ciccio pedaled for an hour and a half to Cinecitta. The walls on which he had once worked were now topped with barbed wire, and four sentries stood at the gate—two of Italian Black-Shirt militiamen on the outside and two Germans inside; the gate was closed. With difficulty Ciccio managed to get his fat leg over the bicycle and wiped his forehead with the end of his woolen scarf. He pushed the bicycle up to one of the Black-Shirt sentries.

"Where can I enquire if there's any work for a mason? I've worked here before."

"This is a German installation. They are not using any Italian workmen."

"My son Claudio was in the Militia. He was called back in 1941, even though he had done the war in Spain. Wounded there; Ciccio hated to brag about the thing in his family, he was most ashamed of. 'He's now a prisoner in India.'"

"Why don't you go to the Palazzo Braschi in Piazza Navona?"

"Yes, I know it well."

"That's headquarters for the Fascist Militia. Go and tell them about your son. There is a sergeant in the employment office; a good fellow—named Donini."

"Would you write me a little recommendation to him?"

"Today is my day off. I'm relieved at eight o'clock, in about an hour I'm going into Rome on my bicycle. I'll meet you at Nino's and go with you."

"Do you have a chance to make a little of those German rations disappear and reappear in L'Aquila in your mother's kitchen?"

The soldier looked from side to side suspiciously to see if he was being overheard. "I have, a little. But it's very dangerous. One soldier in my company was found with five pounds of German sugar. You know what they did to him?"

"No, what did they do to him?"

"They shipped him off to Germany."

"What is your name? I am Massimo, Romolo. I've in Trastevere."

"Taviani, Carlo." They shook hands.

A little before nine Carlo Taviani rode up. Remaining astride his bicycle, he called to Ciccio, who stood in the doorway. "Come along, I'm late. We can talk pedaling into the city."

"I'm so cold. I think caught a chill talking to you. I was sweating. I have ordered a liter of wine. Come in and have some with me."

The militiaman laughed and, padlocking his bicycle, came in. Nino brought in the two half liters and told them to rap on the table if they wanted any more, as he had to go into the kitchen.

Carlo took a small can of German pork out of his pocket. "If I were caught with this . . . He drew a finger across his throat menacingly before he turned the key to open the can.

"Two liters later Ciccio knew that Carlo's father had been in trouble with the Fascists of L'Aquila and, in fact, Carlo himself had been urged into the Fascist Militia by his father as a means of setting things right with the Party."

"Another half liter? Well then, my boy, at least another quartino. It's a cold day, and it looks like rain." With the last quartino Ciccio felt the time had come to approach the subject of what the Germans were building.

"You'd think, with the Allies advancing everywhere—now only 40 kilometers from Rome—that those Germans would have something better to do than to make furniture at Cinecitta. Thousands of tables and chairs they tell me in Rome."

"They're not making tables and chairs! I saw what they were making the other day. They think they're so clever; they won't let us Italians inside the wire except to go get our linchpins; they give us mostly the scraps from their own kitchen. But the other day one of the big doors stuck, and before they could get it closed again I had a good look." Carlo peered around carefully to be sure no one was within hearing.

"When they brought in all those trucks with no bodies on them, I thought they were building wood on bodies for trucks. But they're not." He picked up his glass. Ciccio had done his job almost too well, and more of the wine went on Carlo's uniform than into his mouth.

"What are they building?"

Carlos looked Ciccio in the eye. "Tanks. Big, wooden tanks. With big wooden guns. All painted green."

"But the trucks? What are they doing with the trucks?"

"Each little truck is covered with a big green tank, all made of wood and painted green." Carlo put his head down on the table and closed his eyes.

Ciccio stood up as quietly as possible, took his money out of his pocket and left, even under one of the wine bottles to pay for what they had had. With an expression of mixed shame and guilt at the sleeping militiaman, he tipped out, unlocked his bicycle, and pedaled off to Rome as fast as his fat legs could pump, albeit his course was somewhat zigzag and irregular.

"Tanks? Of wood?" Exclaimed Luchino when Ciccio told him.

"St. tanks. Of wood, with big wooden guns. All painted green. And each tank has within it a little truck. Fifty little trucks went into Cinecitta yesterday. Nino the innkeeper on the Via Tuscolana told me." Ciccio laughed, but Luchino had already realized what the Germans would do with their wooden tanks; he only wondered where they would use them. Before he could reply to Ciccio, the doorbell rang.

"Stay right where you are, Ciccio. Remember, you are here to repair my chimney. It doesn't draw well."

Steel Owners Charged by Union Chief

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—David J. McDonald today charged the steel industry with sponsoring political opposition in the million-member Steelworkers Union to try to unseat him as the union's president.

McDonald told more than 3,000 cheering delegates to the union's opening convention session "we shall overcome" these and other challenges from within and without the big labor organization.

One of McDonald's political opponents was roughed up by ushers and tossed out of the convention hall. Anthony Tomko, president of a 5,000-member local at the National Tube works of U.S. Steel Corp., at McKeesport, Pa., was ejected after passing out some literature.

Tomko was punched in the face, knocked down and his shirt torn during a welcoming speech by New Jersey Gov. Robert J. Meyner.

Sen. John F. Kennedy, the the Pacific Ocean, 1,200 miles south and west of this naval missile facility.

The launching was at 8:35 a.m. At 9:11 a W2 Super Constellation Navy radar plane located the buoyant capsule on its screen and ships carrying frogmen were dispatched to the area.

Officials said they expected the capsule, containing sensitive emulsion which was exposed to hazardous radiation during the flight, would be picked up.

Heavy fog prevented ground observers from seeing the launching, first of several planned on the West Coast by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Judges to Meet at Mt. Sequoyah

FAVETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP)—Thirty-nine Arkansas judges are expected Friday for the annual Judicial Council at Mt. Sequoyah here.

The judges will hear requests on judicial redistricting, proposed retirement changes and suggested procedural changes.

McDonald said his reference to industry political opposition was an answer to declarations made by steel industry leaders at the American Iron & Steel Institute convention this summer to the effect that industry men must become active in internal union politics.

PIPELINERS OF ENERGY

Underground Caverns Provide Economical LPGas Storage

Where natural gas pipelines cannot economically go, liquefied petroleum gases — "bottled" in steel pressure tanks — are providing clean, economical, efficient fuel. As a result, LPGas daily is growing in importance for cooking, heating and refrigeration, and as fuel for tractors, trucks, buses and other mechanical equipment.

Butane and propane are liquid only under pressure or refrigeration. To provide economical, high-pressure storage, Texas Eastern has washed "jug wells" from the salt dome near Mont Belvieu, Texas. Here LPGas is accumulated for shipment via the Little Big Inch products pipeline to Todhunter, near Cincinnati, Ohio, where it is stored in underground caverns until needed. These caverns are mined from shale 350 feet below the surface. This storage assures ample supply of LPGas for the growing Midwest market.

LPGas, motor fuel and burner oils, shipped via Little Big Inch, are only a part of the energy products transported by the Texas Eastern system. Through look-ahead planning, as demonstrated by the Little Big Inch, Texas Eastern moves forward as Pipelines of Energy to the Nation.

Trouble With Mr. X

By HELEN WORDEN ERSKINE

Dear Helen:
I have been going with Mr. X. Last week I had a party and invited him. Everyone came but him. I called Mr. X. He said he wouldn't be able to make it. Friends told me never to speak to him again. The next night Mr. X apologized. I forgave him. My friends won't speak to him. They say I am a sucker. They don't want me to get hurt by this boy. I don't believe that any boy who apologizes in person would hurt me. Am I doing the wrong thing?

—P. J.
Dear P. J.:
Have the courage of your convictions. It's not what others say, it is what you think that matters. Give Mr. X another chance if you like him.

Dear Helen:
I am 20 years old, perform nightly at a club and work in a bar during the day. I've lived with a girl 10 years old for six months but I don't really love her. My eyes are on a girl who sings. I love her and she loves me. I've about decided to go back home and date her' cause she can be a big help to my future plans with a combination of our talents. Should I?
—P.

Dear P.:
You're a mighty self-centered young man. How about the poor little 10-year old you've been cold-bloodedly living with? And what makes you so sure the home-town song bird will team up with you? She certainly won't once she learns you plan to use her for furthering your career. No marriage entered into with selfish interest can ever be happy. Nor will you ever be a great singer if you haven't got heart enough to sense this.

Dear Helen:
We were once happily married and would be yet if it weren't for my husband's boy by his first wife, now 15. He can't get along with anybody, not even my husband's sister who tried to keep him. Now he is back to live with his Dad. I have three children, age seven, four and two. He is always telling them and me to get lost, leave him alone, don't tell him what to do around this house because his Dad lives here. We live here too. I've told him to keep this house clean and do the washing and cooking, if he feels like that. His Dad won't do anything about it. What should I do?
—D. W.

Dear D. W.:
Once you understand the causes of this friction between you and your stepson, you can correct the situation—it you are big enough to face it. A second wife is usually jealous of children her husband had by his first wife. In turn, these children automatically resent the second wife's control over them.

Your stepson needs all the love you can give him. It won't be easy, I grant you, but unless you meet his bad-temper with patience, wisdom and heart, you're going to have a real problem on your hands. That boy acts as he does because he is unwanted. Your marriage is likely to fail

Pastor Defends Religious Stand

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Protestant minister says the Democratic party "has a right to wince at what we're putting out" on the question of Sen. John F. Kennedy's Roman Catholic religion. This was the comment by the Rev. Harrison Parker on being asked unless you make this boy feel that he is an essential part of a happy family unit.

Send your problem to Helen Worden Erskine. Be sure to enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope, and address her care of this newspaper. Helpful leaflets available. Write for "Stepchildren."

Laundromat Opens on S. Hazel St.

Starting now, housewives in Hope and area will have convenient, efficient laundry facilities at their disposal with opening of the new Tom's Laundromat, located at 215 S. Hazel.

Tom's Laundromat will be unattended and coin-metered, and will remain open 7 days a week, including Sundays and holidays, in order to provide a necessary modern convenience for working people and busy housewives who can do their laundry only after normal business hours. Tom Purvis has provided the citizens of Hope with the most complete, most modern laundry facilities available, including 20 washers, 4 dryers, vending machines, and folding.

The new Laundromat offers its customers many benefits. First, and most important, it provides all the advantages of doing the laundry at home with none of the disadvantages. Customers can simultaneously use as many washers and dryers as they need in order to do an entire family wash—thus enabling them to finish a week's laundry in less than one hour. The store also provides plenty of hot, rain-soft water, which, in turn, means cleaner, whiter clothes as well as saving on soap or detergent. Because the new Laundromat has no attendants and customers do it themselves, they will save as much as 50 per cent each week on their laundry. Prices will be 20 cents for a 3-lb. washers load; 10 cents for ten minutes of drying time; plenty of off street parking.

Nude Statue Is Banned in England

LIVERPOOL, England (AP)—A 12-foot statue of a nude man was banned from Liverpool's fashionable Bold Street today.

Within 24 hours after it was unveiled, the statue was ordered removed as complaints mounted. It had big feet, knobby knees, no arms and only half a head.

Said the sculptor, Robin Riley, 27: "I'm too angry to say anything that could be published. People are still too Victorian to appreciate modern art."

The statue had been commissioned by shopkeepers of the Bold Street Association to aid in a shopping campaign.

When they saw the statue, they suspected. They complained about both its nudity and design. Then the owners of the site where the statue was put up announced that it was blocking part of their advertising billboard.

So Riley recruited six men from a nearby building site and had the statue hauled away in a truck to a private garden in the suburbs.

named over the weekend by the Democratic National Committee as one of four "anti-Catholic extremists" who reportedly are agitating the religion issue in the presidential campaign.

Parker, 62, is pastor of the Puritan Church here. The others named are the Rev. Harvey Springer of Englewood, Colo., the Rev. Carl McIntire of Collingswood, N.J., and Brig. Gen. (ret.) Herbert C. Holdridge of California.

Parker said his group distributes literature that is intentionally extreme in order to arouse a strong popular reaction to what he described as the "Vatican attempt to control our country."

Mississippi is Rated Top Team

By ORLO ROBERTSON. Associated Press Sports Writer. Mississippi, long lagged as a potential 1960 powerhouse, used a 42-0 opening game victory as a springboard to reach the top of the nation's college football teams in the first weekly Associated Press poll of the season by the narrowest of margins over Syracuse's defending champions.

The shutout of Houston last Saturday while Syracuse waited a week before opening its season, was enough to give Ole Miss a margin of 33 points in the opinion of The Associated Press panel of 48 experts. In the pre-season poll, Syracuse topped the Southeastern Conference school by 20 points.

The "tribunal was so evenly divided in the vote announced today that Syracuse and Mississippi each received 22 first place votes and also the same number, 16, for second. The difference came in third place.

Washington, which opened the season with a 55-6 victory over College of Pacific, ran a strong third. The Big Five eleven was named first on three ballots and compiled 378 points.

Opening game defeats by Southern California, Pittsburgh, and Texas cost them first 10 ranking. Oklahoma, which opens its campaign Saturday against Northwestern, also dropped out of the select.

Rates Ft. Smith Top Grid Team in Arkansas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Fort Smith's Grizzlies replaced El Dorado as Arkansas' top school boy football team this week in the Associated Press ratings after drubbing the Wildcats 35-6 last Friday night in El Dorado.

Fort Smith moved up from third place to first while El Dorado dropped to fourth. Little Rock Central, which beat Class AA Subiaco 30-7, retained second position and Pine Bluff, whose Zebras beat Texarkana 32-0, moved into third place.

Fort Smith and Pine Bluff met Friday night in an important Big Nine Conference game in Fort Smith.

Little Rock Catholic retained first place among Class AA teams after a narrow 21-20 victory over surprisingly strong Camden. The Rockets are seventh in the overall ratings.

Wynne and Helena, two Region 2AA powerhouses, moved into the Top 12 for the first time this week. Wynne into ninth place and Helena into 10th. Both have 3-0 records and both are unscored on. They don't play each other until Oct. 28.

St. Ann's of Fort Smith, which was idle this week, retained first place among Class A teams. And Atkins which beat Charleston 27-0, held first place in the Class B rankings after a 12-0 victory over Hot Springs. North Little Rock, the team's Hall meets Friday night, ranks sixth after a 19-0 victory over Blytheville.

Porkers Told Tulsa to Be Tough Foe

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Tulsa, the next football foe of the Arkansas Razorbacks, is stronger than the 38-14 licking they got Friday would make it appear.

Scouts gave the Porkers that warning Monday. And coach Frank Broyles, noting that the Hurricane roared to 423 yards in offense against New Mexico State, underlined it: "They're 423 yards worth better."

Broyles said the Hogs came through Saturday's 9-0 victory over Oklahoma State Saturday without serious injury and should be in top shape Saturday when they meet Tulsa here.

Broyles, seeking to strengthen the offense, worked about 40 minutes on kicking Monday. The Porkers worked out in shorts, as is the custom on Monday.

Fullback Joe Paul Alberty probably won't play before the Texas Christian game Sept. 24. Broyles said Alberty's fractured jaw is healed enough that he could play if needed, but Broyles said he'd be held out unless either Curtis Cox or Billy Joe Moody, the other two fullbacks, is injured.

TULSA, OKLA. (AP) — The Arkansas Razorbacks are fast, well drilled and hard hitting, Tulsa football players have learned.

And Coach Bobby Dobbs said Monday that the Porkers are likely to score more this year because they are throwing more.

The Tulsans ran through a light drill Monday after hearing a scouting report on Arkansas' 9-0 victory over Oklahoma State. Tulsa lost 38-13 to New Mexico State and the chief passer of the Hurricane, quarterback Jerry Keeling, suffered an ankle injury.

Dobbs said, however, that Keeling might be ready to play Saturday at Fayetteville.

Class B

1. Atkins (3-0-0)
2. Earle (2-0-0)
3. Batesville (2-0-0)
4. Arkadelphia (2-1-0)
5. De Queen (2-1-0)

Pirates, Yanks Could Wrap It Up Quick

By ED WILKS

Associated Press Sports Writer

The Pittsburgh Pirates, with triggerman Dick Groat due back sooner than expected, and the New York Yankees start 11-game mop-up jobs tonight that should sweep them into the World Series opener two weeks from Wednesday.

Pittsburgh, inching toward its first National League pennant in 33 years with a 54-game lead over second place St. Louis, goes into a two-night doubleheader at Philadelphia against the last-place Phils. The Yankees, rolling with a four-game buge over Baltimore and Chicago after belting the Orioles four straight, meet the troublesome Washington Senators.

Only three games were scheduled Monday, all in the NL, where the Cardinals eliminated the world champion Los Angeles Dodgers, 1-0, on Joe Cunningham's home run, and San Francisco swept a doubleheader at Chicago, beating the Cubs 11-4 and 4-1.

That left both the Pirates and Yankees with magic numbers of seven. Any combination of Buc victories and St. Louis defeats totaling seven clinches the flag for Pittsburgh. The same formula applies for the Yankees over the Orioles and defending champion White Sox.

The Bucs were told by their club doctor Monday that Groat should be playing again "within a week or 10 days."

The sparkling shortstop suffered a fractured wrist two weeks ago when he was hit by a pitch from Milwaukee's Lew Burdette. He has been considered lost for the rest of the regular season, and perhaps for the World Series, too.

Groat, who was second in the NL bat race when he went out, moved into a tie with Los Angeles first baseman Norm Larker at .325 when the Cards' Bob Miller and Lindy McDaniel allowed the Dodgers only five hits Monday night. Larker's lone hit in four trips (costing him a percentage point) was a one-out single in the ninth, but McDaniel then came on and struck out rookie Tommy Davis and pinch-hitter Wally Moon.

That saved a 4-1 record for Miller, who walked two and struck out five in his first start since June 4 after a side ailment. It was McDaniel's 1st appearance and 25th save.

Cunningham's homer, in the sixth, handed the defeat to Stan Williams (14-9).

Willie Kirkland drove in four runs with a pair of homers in the opener for the Giants and Ed Fisher (1-0). Billy O'Dell (8-12) then beat the Cubs with a three-hitter and Bob Schmidt's grand-slam homer in the fifth off Seth Morehead (2-8) in the nightcap. The second game was held to eight innings by darkness in lightless Wrigley Field.
